Notice of Community Hearing Corrections Facility Expansion Project

Wednesday August 2, 2006
Nisqually Tribal Center
Conference Room @ 5:30 pm

The Tribe has completed design work for an addition to the tribal Corrections Facility.

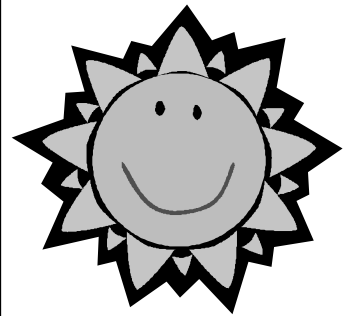

The project involves the addition of administrative space (offices, storage, and training space) to the existing facility, as well as the construction of space for 24 additional beds for housing inmates.

The Tribe will hold a public hearing Wednesday, August 2, 2006 at 5:30 PM, in the Tribal center Conference Room to discuss the expansion plan.

Copies of the expansion plan blueprints, and a site plan, will be available.

Funding for the project is through a Department of Justice grant, and bank financing.

If you have questions, please contact Joe Cushman at 360 456-5221, ext 1112.

Update on the $350,000 Collateral For Nisqually Aquatics Technologies

On March 7, 2006 the Tribal Council approved a motion to set aside Cigarette Tax fund in the amount of $350,000 with the Bank of America. This amount is to be used as collateral for the Nisqually Aquatics Technologies (NAT) loan.

I then directed Eletta Tiam, the Tribe's Chief Financial Officer to work with Bank of America to set up the collateral fund.

On May 9, 2006 Eletta informed me that she contacted Bank of America to set aside $350,000 for the Cigarette Tax fund into a Certificate of Deposit (CD) for eighteen (18) months. The interest earned by this CD is higher than the saving account rate. The CD is in the Tribes name, not Nisqually Aquatics Technologies. This account is being used to disburse the loan, for deposit of NAT income earnings and for the bank to automatically withdraw the monthly loan payment. All

Nisqually Tribe to Purchase Surplus Fire Station in Nisqually Valley

By Joe Cushman

The Nisqually Tribe has emerged as the successful bidder for the surplus fire station located across from the old Nisqually School in Nisqually Valley.

The Fire District received more than 150 inquiries on the property, with at least 4 bids received by the deadline. The Tribe's bid was $177,500, which is $25,000 less than the assessed value of the property established by the county assessor.

The property is approximately 1 acre in size, with a 1200 square foot fire station and a small outbuilding. The facility and grounds are in good shape. Possible uses of the facility and grounds include economic development, resource management programs, or cultural programs.

The Tribe needs to close on the deal by the end of July. Funds for the acquisition will come from the land account and a bank land acquisition line of credit.

Tracking Nisqually Steelhead Trout as They Head to the Ocean

By Sayre Hodgson

The Nisqually River used to have about 6000 steelhead trout returning every year. For at least the last 10 years though, the run has been in decline, with sometimes only a few hundred trout returning to the spawning grounds. Similar declines have been seen in some other Puget Sound steelhead runs and the Puget Sound steelhead are currently proposed for listing under the Endangered Species Act. There is concern that there may be a problem in Puget Sound or in the ocean so the Nisqually Tribe funded an acoustic tracking study to focus on this issue.

This spring the Nisqually Natural Resources Salmon Recovery Team teamed up with a number of other agencies to insert vitamin-sized tags in the steelhead smolts as they head down the river on their way to the ocean. The tags will help us to learn where the trout go, how well they survive, and whether there are areas where a lot of the fish are dying. The fish were caught mostly by hook and line fishing and the tags were surgically implanted in their bellies. Then, as the fish swim down the river, they pass receivers which can 'hear' the tags and record which fish passed when. The receivers are black and the size of a water bottle. They are anchored at key places in the river like the Centralia powerhouse, I-5, and several places below I-5. After the fish leave the river, they will pass numerous receivers in Puget Sound and the Straits of Georgia and Juan de Fuca. So far, as of June 16th, we know that about 80% of the trout we tagged have been 'heard' by the receivers in the estuary. This is good news that they survived surgery and are headed out to Puget Sound. We look forward to following their progress.

The receivers in the Nisqually lower river also heard some tagged fish that didn't come from the Nisqually. They were Green River hatchery steelhead, that for some reason headed down to the Nisqually Estuary, rather than straight out to Puget Sound like people thought they might.

This research will help the Salmon Recovery Team to figure out where Nisqually steelhead might be running into problems. That might take several years, but once we know more about where the problems are we can figure out what we can do to help, with the goal of restoring the steelhead run to a healthy status with enough fish returning to support our fishermen. More steelhead returning to the river would also benefit our chum fishery, which currently has to shut down early at the end of the season to avoid catching too many of the endangered steelhead.

HOYT

Community Workshop!

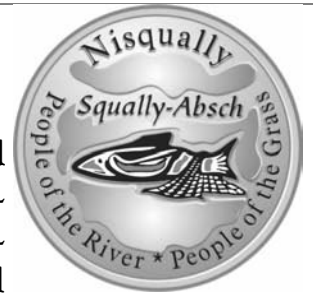

The Master Planner, Michael Cardwell, is working with Norine Wells, Stephanie Scott, and Brian McCloud on a Comprehensive Land Planning Project. The outcome and final product will be a written document that will span 20 years, that outlines what the desires of the Nisqually Community wants for their reservation and surrounding lands (which they have a natural resource management role in.) This is basically a follow-up to the Community Vision Plan that was previously developed.

These workshops will be topics within the scope of the land use plan and will address such areas as transportation, economic development, housing, parks, capital improvements (buildings), utilities, etc. We are currently gathering the information and maps and trying to finalize the Community Workshop schedule.

The Community can also go to the Master Planner link on the Nisqually website and participate in an on-line forum.

For more information call Michael Cardwell at 456-5221 ext.1252

Salmon Camp seeks Nisqually Tribal youth

On August 14 and 15, Salmon Camp, a natural science and career-training program for Native American youth managed by Oregon Museum of Science and Industry (OMSI), will be visiting the Nisqually Watershed to learn about some of the restoration projects that are planned by the Nisqually Natural Resources Department for the Mashel River and Nisqually River estuary.

During those two days, all Nisqually youth are welcome to attend the workshops, trainings, and hands on activities with Salmon Camp students of various Tribal affiliations. Everyone attending will be accompanied by Nisqually Tribe restoration biologists, Salmon Camp counselors, and Nisqually Youth Program coordinators. Some of the activities include learning about Nisqually Tribal history and culture from a member of the Nisqually Tribe, measuring logs at a restoration site on the Mashel River, visiting a Nisqually River estuary site, and learning how to snorkel and count juvenile fish.

Salmon Camp offers resource management experiences that include natural science, advanced technology, and career exposure for students with Native American Affiliations who are entering grades 10 - 12. Youngsters will be given the opportunity to interact with professional researchers in a variety of project areas and become familiar with advanced technology used in the field. Salmon Camp places special emphasis on helping students move into college programs that suit their interests.

For more information about this great opportunity, please contact Don Perry, at Nisqually Natural Resources, 438-8687 ext 2143, or perry.don@nisqually-nsn.gov

General Council Members:

It was truly a great honor to preside over the June 26 General Council meeting. There were 109 tribal members in attendance. Is that a record?

The crowd was a mix of faces of all ages. There were so many young people who took the time to come out and participate in their tribal government. It was nothing short of motivating to begin working and preparing for the next General Council. Once again, I thank all of you who attended that meeting. Your attendance, participation and guidance is what makes tribal government work toward a higher level of productivity.

Our next meeting will be Saturday August 19, 2006 at 10am. The meeting will be held in the gym. I am currently working on preparing the information you directed the Tribal Council to act on from June 26. You gave us a lot to work on, so that is how I am spending the majority of my time since inauguration.

Until then, I hope your enjoying the summer! See you on the 19th!

Sincerely,
Cynthia Iyall
Chairperson

CELL-TELEPHONES

I would like to gather all cell telephones that can be re-cycled. These phones will be donated to the Rocklin, CA. Lions Club who will then sell these items to a licensed recycler. This allows the Lions Club to purchase pre-paid AT&T Military Global calling cards for the troops to call home from Iraq and Afghanistan.

- We will accept these surplus phones at the front desk of the Nisqually Tribal Office
- No power cords please
- We will also accept surplus eye glasses
- All cell phones are unlocked and information erased by computer at the recycling center

I think this is a noble cause and thank you for any contribution you can make.
Larry E. Sanchez

ATTENTION!!!

The Enrollment department would like to update the tribal member files. So if anyone has changed their address, name, custody, please come in and update your information or call me or leave a message at (360)456-5221 ext. 1240, and ask for an update form. I will be working on updating all information in individual files during the end of August and September. So be expecting to hear from me if our files are missing any pertinent documents I may need. Your consideration and cooperation will be much appreciated as I try to update the files. Thanks

The following tribal member's mail is being returned from the post office; please contact us as soon as possible if your name is on this list. Also, if you are in contact with, related to or know the whereabouts of these people tell them we need their updated address. Spread the word please.

Tribal Court Probation Services Information

By Marie Kalama

Tribal Probation Services is currently supervising 27 cases on deferred prosecution or probation. Supervision includes monitoring conditions imposed by the court and standard conditions of supervision. This also includes ensuring legal financial payments are paid in full prior to termination of supervision. All clients report monthly or bi-monthly the 1st and 3rd Thursdays of each month between the hours of 9am to 4pm. As needed, individual meetings are scheduled separately.

As required, the Probation Officer is responsible to ensure clients are referred for evaluations and treatment as ordered by the Court and/or remain employed or continue their academic or vocational education.

The Probation Officer attends criminal court on a regular basis and as required, provides testimony to the Court on clients that are in non-compliance with their terms of supervision. The Probation Officer also provides recommends to the Court on those clients found to be in violation of their supervision.

Draft probation codes and policies have been completed and are currently pending final approval by the Nisqually Tribal Council.

ENROLLMENT NOTICE

The Tribal Enrollment Office will be closed between Wednesday, July 19, 2006 and Friday, August 11, 2006. We are sorry for any inconvenience.

A special "confidential" box will be set up at the Front Reception desk to receive enrollment letters, applications, or other documents.

Please seal them in an envelope marked "Enrollment, ATTN: Grace Hyasman" and our friendly front desk staff will hold them for you until they can be reviewed.

Please be sure to date all materials submitted for review.

Tribal Council Sub-Committee members Marlene Mercado, Stephanie Scott and Norine Wells will be available if you need to discuss enrollment issues during that time. We can be reached at (360) 456-5221. Marlene's extension is 1261; Stephanie's extension is 1116; Norine's extension is 1163. Please do leave a voice mail if any of us are unable to pick up the call.

UPDATING YOUR CHILD'S IMMUNIZATIONS & SCHEDULED SPORTS EXAMS

The medical clinic would like to remind you to call the clinic to schedule your child's sports exams and also to update them on any immunizations they may need.

Adolescents 11-18 yrs of age should get a Tdap immunization; this will protect them from 3 different serious diseases.

- Tetanus (Lockjaw) causes painful tightening of the muscles, usually all over the body. Tetanus leads to death in up to 2 cases out of 10.
- Diphtheria causes a thick covering in the back of the throat it can lead to breathing problems, paralysis, heart failure and even death.
- Pertusis (Whooping cough) causes severe coughing spells, vomiting, and disrupted sleep. This can lead to many things including weight loss, pneumonia, and hospitalization due to complications.

Also there is a Meningococcal vaccine

(meningitis) that should be given to children 11-12 years of age at their routine check up. It is also recommended for college freshman living in dormitories. Talk with your health care provider to see if you are at high risk and need to receive this vaccine.

Remember that you should keep track of when your child needs their immunizations and Well Child Exams. Your child should have a Well Child Exam at birth, 1 month, 2 months, 4 months, 6 months, 12 months, 15 months, 18 months, 24 months, 4-6 yrs, 11-12 yrs, 13-14 yrs, 15 yrs and 16-18 yrs. You can contact any of the Medical Assistants at the Nisqually Indian Tribe Health Department by calling (360) 459-5312 extension 1166 to schedule an appt for your child to update their immunizations and any physicals they may need.

Purchase Order and Travel Training

The Financial Services department will provide training on how to properly fill out purchase order requisitions and travel paperwork. All departments are encouraged to send representatives. New employees are especially urged to attend. Community members are also welcome. The training will be held July 26th on the stage (in the gym.) You may choose the session that best fits your schedule, 10AM or 2PM. A follow up session will be held August 9th for anyone who is unable to attend in July. Watch for further announcements in your email and on the bulletin boards!

Water Facts

Our bodies are approximately 70 percent water; our blood is about 83 percent water; our lungs are close to 90 percent water; and our brain is 75 percent water.

Water Wisdom

U.S. water consumption is twice that of other industrialized nations. * The average single-family home uses 80 to 120 gallons per person, daily. *Most people in the world walk three hours to get water. *1.2 billion people worldwide don't have access to clean water. *6.8 billion gallons are flushed down U.S. toilets every day.

Did You Know?

Water is crucial to every major bodily function, from digestion to elimination. It is also responsible for circulating nutrients to every single cell. Water lubricates organs, flushes out toxins, metabolizes fat, and maintains body temperature. It is no wonder that high water consumption is linked with good health!
